For this project, I learnt how to create and delete widgets, as well as finding a way to organise variables into different categories, and those categories into a dictionary. I had to make very little compromises from the planning stage to the end, and everything went as planned. The only changes made was the layout of the buttons and UI.